

Divine Knowledge

I've got to work backwards here; the title is the end of discussion. Anything that I can say is BS, how could another person possibly tell you knowledge OF God? At the very best, if they are free of dogma and other misinformation to slant their perspective, they can give you their impression, an attempt at explaining their understanding.

What happens when people get a little DK and they know that they are OF God is that they think their thoughts are OF God. They promulgate with that (false) Authority, claiming to be delivering DK.

No I am not; I am explaining my understanding of what DK is, knowledge OF God. OF God, the Awareness that began everything, knowledge of Everything all at once. No rhyme or reason, no question, no answer needed, everything Is as it is. Knowing that you are OF God is personally understanding there is no difference, no separation and no explanation between you and God.

It's not something to possess it's a place to be. It's where you are conscious of God. It is the place of Understanding and truth.

Seek and you will find, Devine Knowledge.