

False Prophets

Oh my God! Here comes another one of those crackpots.

I've been called one but I don't qualify, I'm a simple fuckin' mechanic. I did just run up against one though, I see why someone claiming to have the way to save the world might run into skepticism.

I think false prophets are common in Society, most of them are on a very low level the prophet of their immediate group. The person is looked to for guidance and will guide with recorded information instead of the wisdom of the prophet. This is an innocent action inherent in the "direction" of Society.

As in all things the radicals define it, and this guy was/is "out there". He has a plan that is a remake of Christianity with himself as a star. He will tell you everything you need to know about how to live your life.

I think you should live your life as you choose and I pray that you will choose to respect all Life. My way is simple, my guiding premise is "do no wrong" and I exercise it by trying to consider all points of view. And all that has nothing to do with this simple mechanic trying to save the world.

The false prophets have all the answers to all the problems of the world; they have a band-aid for every pimple. All the pimples are caused by the same thing but they haven't got a clue. They will tell you it's because of some entity of Evil or the will of God and you can overcome it if you follow them.

It's a simple mechanical thing that we can change without any dictates of how you should live your life.

I think this guy was a pretty good model of the radical FP, high IQ and a charismatic master of baffling with bull-shit. He came at me through my website to recruit. When he failed to overwhelm and dominate me with his bull-shit he tried to enlist me as his verbal pit-bull. It never occurred to him that I was so tough because of truth.

It's no wonder that I can make no progress when guys like this have paved the way to save the world.

A simple thing in your mind, flip a switch to make a connection and then go on about living your life.

They really aren't bad people, these radical FPs, they usually start out with the highest moral intentions. It's because of the high IQ not having "avenue" to progress within the confines of our physical world causing confusion. ALL of the highest moral thoughts have been thought, trying to go beyond with physical thought causes previously determined truths to become distorted and allows incorrect behavior.

The connection we will make will open an "avenue". The "avenue" will traverse the mind of mankind above the level of ALL the highest moral thoughts. A "common" connection in the minds of mankind will pave it.

It really is simple. The connection is a physical word plain and simple, a word with a meaning. The meaning connects to the Feeling that is beyond the physical world. The hard part is making it "common".

If I was an FP I'd be a lot better oriented to progress in making it happen. I'm a mechanic, a little bit crude and unintentionally rude with my directness. I've made virtually no progress in almost four years, I need help.

Saving the world is a simple fix, not some traumatic affair to be conducted by a prophet, true or false.

BLitTeR - "acknowledge the Feeling"