

I Know What is Wrong With the World

Seriously I'm talkin' here.

Every problem in the world has its root in the same fact. I did say fact, not some ambiguous shit like Evil, a subject and object with action.

It is "the" fact of creation and the "direction" of Society, From God.

The fact is nothing is wrong, God authorized it, and it is the rule of creation.

The rules of physics, archetypal rules and all the rules of modern man are the "direction" of creation From God into the physical world. The "direction" of God's creation is to guide man in the progressive mastering of the "physical world". That is done; it now needs to be changed.

The fact is elemental in the structure of Society; it is the bond that allows the individuals of Earth to form a common "real world". It is the bond of the "real world", and if changed would change the "real world".

So!!! What's wrong with the world?

The fact IS; it's supposed to get funky, like the Earth is a compost pile. It's reached the point of being usable for new growth.

The fact that the fact has been discovered uncovers the fact that something can be done with the fact.

The fact is rule overrules God.

Was that anticlimactic? Did you miss it?

Every problem in the world has its root in the fact that "rule overrules God". You can use any God you want with here and now intelligence; rule is rules of any kind, laws, "they say" rules and even our subconsciously established self-rule. At the Bottom Line when a decision is made "rule overrules God", something pre-recorded is the deciding factor of decisions made, overruling a true feeling of what is right here and now.

It sounds too simple to be significant, but when you get to studying it, the complexity of its weave into Society is awesome. Every facet of Life in our Society is "directed" to be as it is by this fact. We can change Society if we simply change the fact.

No! I am not saying that we have to throw away all the rules. That's the method of violent revolution and the rules are just replaced with other rules, we have to change the "direction". We cannot remove a basic element, rule or God, only the action can be changed.

The overruling can be changed. It has to be changed where it has its effect, at the Bottom Line, the place in our minds that the final decision is made. What I'm saying will lead some to think this is metaphysical nonsense but it is not. I am defining the line between the physical world and the metaphysical, which is the Bottom Line. Crossing the Line goes into the realm of God (metaphysical), on this side is the world of Rule (the physical world); the action takes place at the Line as "directed".

The dominance of Rule is allowed by the force of God being reduced by "direction". The constructing of Society, the breaking down of the "perfect balance" force into positive and negative, causes the reduction of the power of God.

What we have to do is connect with the full power of God in the physical world. And we can do it at the Bottom Line with a simple bridge between the physical world and the metaphysical. We have a tap on the metaphysical, in our mind; it is the Feeling of other than the physical world.

The Feeling is given a thousand different explanations by the “direction of Society. That is the way the “perfect balance” is broken down into positive and negative that reduces the power so it is subject to Rule. That is how the fact weaves through every facet of Society, and the key to changing the “direction”.

The “direction” facilitates creation in the physical world, from the metaphysical “perfect balance” by breaking it apart and then coordinating the tendency to return to normal in the dimension outlined by the parameters of the physical world, without reference to the “perfect balance”.

The tendency of the force to return to “perfect balance” is the cohesive bond that makes the “real world” stable. As the Human our free will gives us the power of “direction”. The Human as a single entity determines the way of the real world and if we “commonly” refer to the “perfect balance” we can change the “direction”.

“Commonly” refer to the “perfect balance”.

BLitTeR, “acknowledge the Feeling”.
