

SAVIOR

Yep! That's me. I'm the one who figured out how to stop the decline of mankind. The savior of mankind because I did diligently seek this knowledge that nobody wants.

You should all be down on your knees saying, "Thank you Tinker thank you", but please don't, I'd die laughing. Not laughing at you, laughing for joy at the thought of finally getting some help to make a miracle to happen.

I'm simply telling you that the world learning a simple word will make things better for all mankind. You ask me to explain how it will work. When I try, you attack my method and me personally and then take a bit of the explanation out of context and apply your meaning to it so you can tell me I don't know what I'm talking about or not making sense.

I'm the one you asked to explain. It's like I'm a geometry teacher, on the first day of class I hand out a paper with all the geometric formulas we will be working with. You look at it and say, "This doesn't make any sense to me", and throw it in the trash. Guess who's failing.

Yep! That's me with the way to stop the decline, and it's only a possibility. It has to be made to happen. The decline is real Life here and now and will continue to hellish extremes.