

The Equal Need

The one and only need for a human being to exist is Life. Everything else is wanting, ideally, for that which would best benefit Life.

R.E.M., their Finest Worksong says, “what we want and what we need has been confused”, that’s one serious understatement. I need a beer, I need a cigarette, I need new clothes and a new car, I need to breathe. Oops!

You think I blew my point with that one?

I’m a freediver, I go deep in the ocean without breathing. When you get down around fifty feet you can know the difference between wanting to breathe and the need to sustain Life.

The only need. Calling a want a need, in itself is nothing wrong, it’s only a word. What it does with the “direction” of Society is devalue the one true need. Life is often overruled in decisions made on the basis of wants disguised as need.

Equal, absolutely, every human being counts one Life. Life is the connection of a point in the mind of God to the physical world, commanding the elements to come together with form and function to become the miracle of the human body. And challenged people are the most miraculous illustration of the one need. Whether it be a genetic defect or the result of a trauma they overcome all odds with the power of Life. We claim we need, to walk and talk and see.

Don’t take me wrong, wants being fulfilled is the celebration of Life.

Every-One, has an equal right to celebrate.

Ignorance

One of Society’s clever deceptions, in a word. Oh the poor uneducated, they don’t know any better. Add a little ignore-ance and it goes away, no need to do anything about it. Out of sight out of mind, and all you have to do is turn your head.

The grand experiment, it was a necessary aid for focusing our intent on specifics, to the point of mastery. Masters of the physical world, we are, able to pick up and transport a Life sustaining composition of Earth. Science Fiction world colonies can be built with our technology.

Ignorance Whoa! We’ve had enough. Does anyone still believe, of the way that Society is going, “it can’t get much worse”. I think we have been saying it through the ages and Christians have been pointing out the (final) signs for two thousand years. It is getting real hard to ignore the fact that it can and will continue getting worse until we change the way of Society.

BLitTeR, don’t ignore God, “acknowledge the Feeling”.

